

OptiVision helps deploy Navori based corporate communication system in Astelite corporate offices life:) (Astelite) is the third largest Ukrainian mobile telephone network operator with more than 11 000 000 active users. The company is very dynamic and has set its sights becoming number one within their local market. Astelite recognized it needed the support of all of its employees if it was to achieve its target so the company's management is rolling out a corporate communication network across their enterprise with the help of OptiVision. Displays have been installed in each regional office so corporate broadcasts can now be seen by every employee in the company.

The system is controlled by a Navori Standard Server and the network spans 7 of the largest Astelite offices including the company's headquarters in Kyiv. There are several Navori Players deployed that service 10 distinct areas in every building. This includes guest and reception areas, food courts, lobbies, senior management offices, rest rooms, and more.

Using the various Navori features, the company was able to improve:

- Promotional offerings to visitors.
- Company news and important notices to employees.
- Corporate programming, training sessions, special events, partnership news, useful information, and more...

The Navori Server Standard platform provides 24/7 content and scheduling control with outstanding playback quality of all required media formats including PowerPoint. Support for PowerPoint is critical as this ensures quick and efficient content authoring by most office staff.

Thanks to their Navori based corporate communication system, Astelite administrators can concentrate on their message rather than managing the technology behind it.
